Ecotopia is a yearly two-week international camp for activists from all over Europe and an open gathering for all people interested in environmental and social justice issues.

During two weeks people work in order to apply a functional model of self-sustainable community that puts into practice the principles of an alternative and more environmentally friendly life-style: consensus decision-making, waste recycling, vegetarian kitchen, use of alternative energy... Economically, Ecotopia operates on the ecorates system - an alternative economic system based on living standards and income of people rather than financial markets, which means that you pay for food at Ecotopia the same amount as you would pay for it in your own country.

Ecotopia has a horizontal and self-organized structure; everyone is asked to take part in running the camp, solving problems and decision-making. And everybody is responsible for creating the programme!

Aljezur - Portugal 4th to 19th of August 2007

This year, the 19th Ecotopia will take place between August 4th - 19th in Aljezur, south of Portugal. The Migrations are the main theme for this year. It will have a special focus on the days 10, 11 and 12 of August, while the other days will remain open to other themes.

Come to debate and plan joint activities about climate change, transport and mobility, GMOs, organic food, eco-building, politics and global economic system, alternative media, migration, racism and xenophobia, cultural issues...
